

We need to break up large media conglomerates. The trend toward greater and greater consolidation is a threat to democracy. I oppose any effort to relax the rules governing the number of media outlets that one corporation can own in a given market.